Overview

Nicholas Cornell assists clients with a wide range of corporate transactions and general business matters, focusing on agile solutions to help companies achieve strategic objectives at all stages of growth. He has experience drafting corporate documents from entity formation through deal execution, structuring agreements that adapt to clients' unique needs as deals evolve.

As a future-oriented advisor, Nicholas counsels business leaders on how rapidly changing data privacy laws and regulations impact mergers and acquisitions, assessing risk and all possible implications before guiding clients toward compliant, financially efficient solutions.

Nicholas also helps guide clients through corporate restructurings and general corporate governance matters, addressing some of the most challenging issues and competing interests for improved organizational frameworks.
