BIOGRAPHY

Steve Rickles practices in the employee benefits, estate planning, and business and tax exempt organizations areas.

Steve's employee benefits practice focuses on advising businesses, tax exempt organizations, governmental entities and individuals on all aspects of establishing, operating and maintaining the legal compliance of retirement and other employee benefits plans, ESOPs, stock option plans and executive compensation arrangements, guiding them through the complexities of these matters to the best possible decision for their organization. Steve represents clients in dealing with the IRS and the DOL regarding employee benefits matters and advises clients on fiduciary responsibility and prohibited transactions matters.

Steve's estate planning practice includes estate and gift tax planning, preparation of wills, trusts and financial and health care powers of attorney, and advising clients about estate freezing techniques and charitable gift planning. Dynasty trusts, charitable lead trusts and well-crafted succession plans are among the many vehicles Steve has used to help clients accomplish their tax and personal goals.

Steve also advises clients regarding the operation and taxation of businesses and tax exempt organizations and assists clients with their business succession planning.

Highlights of Steve's experience include:

- Maintaining the legal compliance of prototype 401(k), profit sharing, and 403(b) plans maintained by nearly 150 businesses and tax exempt organizations.
- Advised a large family-owned manufacturing business regarding the implementation of an Employee Stock Ownership Plan as a part of a long-term succession plan.
- Advised the owner of a large medical equipment company on the sale of portions of such business to "intentionally defective trusts" for family members in order to help freeze the value of the owner's taxable estate.
- Represented a company that maintained a 401(k) Plan with auto-enrollment and auto-escalation provisions in a submission under the IRS' Voluntary Correction Program to correct a series of errors in the operation of the Plan.
