Waste Management

Managing the legal issues of waste managers.

Cities and businesses produce waste. Waste managers plan for it, transport it, and dispose of it. The Spencer Fane Waste Management team advises entities throughout the waste chain – the organizations and companies producing, transporting, and disposing. With deep experience providing legal and business advice to those operating in the waste management sector, we are poised to help with day-to-day operational issues as well as strategic planning for business growth and expansion.

Overview

Negotiating solid waste management plans

Spencer Fane Waste Management lawyers have extensive experience providing advice to landfill operators, recyclers, waste transporters, sanitary districts, municipalities, and others engaged in waste management, both as their primary business or as part of their ongoing operations.
