SpencerFane®

Allen Darrah Named Legalweek Leaders in Tech Law Award Finalist for Second Year

Spencer Fane is pleased to announce Chief Information Officer Allen Darrah's second consecutive nomination for ALM's Legalweek Leaders in Tech Law Awards. He is one of only three finalists in the Significant Advancement in Technology (Individual) category.

In its fifth year, the Leaders in Tech Law Awards celebrate organizations and their professionals for innovation across an expansive slate of categories across law firms, legal departments, and technology providers. Allen and his fellow finalists were selected from an extensive list of worthy nominees who work on game-changing projects and initiatives for the industry.

On March 24, winners will be announced at an in-person award ceremony during ALM's Legalweek 2025 conference in New York. This annual gathering features a variety of educational programming for thousands of legal professionals that explores industrywide business and regulatory trends, technology, talent drivers and more. In addition to representing the firm at the ceremony, Allen will join the panel, Data Governance Best Practices for Collaboration Across Departments.

At the firm, Allen spearheads the technological vision at Spencer Fane, driving innovation and digital transformation while also serving as a foremost authority in navigating complex business environments. He also ensures the stringent protection of client data and privacy.

Read the full shortlist of this year's honorees for Leaders in Tech Law here.