

Associated General Contractors Spotlight Aaron Dean for Heat Safety Guidance

Spencer Fane attorney Aaron Dean was recently highlighted in the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of Minnesota Weekly Update newsletter for his insights on heat and air quality safety.

The AGC notified member contractors about Aaron's LinkedIn post delivering practical insights for Minnesota employers seeking to limit heat-related hazards for their workforce. Leveraging his deep background in OSHA litigation, Aaron cited relevant federal and state regulations and recommended effective approaches for reducing risk and addressing heat stress during extreme summer temperatures.

Aaron Dean is a recognized thought leader in the Upper Midwest construction industry who gives over 15 speeches per year to industry organizations, including the Minnesota Safety Council and the American Society of Safety Professionals. He has handled approximately 600 OSHA cases in 28 States. At Spencer Fane, Aaron represents general contractors, subcontractors, suppliers, and public and private owners in every aspect of construction dispute resolution. Through his diligent work, he ensures contractors get paid via statutory and contract remedies, solves their day-to-day problems, and protects their safety records.
