

Bill Hopkins Details Health Care Lateral Market for Law360

Spencer Fane attorney Bill Hopkins analyzed the developing trend of law firms adding to health care practices in “anticipation of a boom in work” in a recent Law360 article.

“The top reason health care attorneys would move to another firm is to increase the amount of access they have to health care expertise or support that would allow them to broaden their client base,” Bill explained in the article. Firms bolstering health care practices is “largely driven by the demand for legal services in the health care sector, a demand that has accelerated since the COVID-19 pandemic put health care attorneys on the frontline of many challenging new issues.”

To read the full article, please click here. Please note, a subscription may be required.