

Carly Sirota Joins Denver Office as Labor and Employment Associate

Spencer Fane LLP is pleased to announce Carly Sirota joined the Labor and Employment practice group as an associate in the firm's Denver office. She brings a unique combination of experience in private practice and government roles.

Most recently, Carly served as an Honors Attorney for the United States Postal Service (USPS), handling employment matters for the federal agency. In addition, she previously spent time as both an associate attorney and law clerk for a mid-sized law firm. Her experience includes preventive counseling and development and implementation of effective policies and procedures to reduce the potential for litigation but also handling matters in courts and other legal venues when necessary.

In addition, Carly boasts experience in conducting training sessions for employers on high-profile issues related to employment law.

"Colorado continues to be a very attractive place for many businesses, which is fueling growth and economic strength," said Ron Fano, office managing partner for Spencer Fane in Denver. "With growth comes an increased need to assist clients in navigating the spectrum of employment related legal issues. We look forward to Carly's contributions in maintaining our commitment to efficient and collaborative strategies related to identifying and addressing complex labor and employment matters for our clients."

Carly completed her undergraduate studies at the University of Massachusetts Amherst's Isenberg School of Management and earned her Juris Doctor from the University of Connecticut School of Law. While in law school, she completed an internship in the USPS labor and employment legal division that preceded her eventual professional work with the agency.
