

SpencerFane®

Dale Burrus and Lauren Nelson Provide Strategies to Limit Health Care Litigation Risk

Spencer Fane attorneys Dale Burrus and Lauren Nelson, recently published an article for the American Health Law Association (AHLA).

Titled "Health Care Risk Mitigation in the Ever-Changing COVID Landscape," the article outlines how providers can minimize their potential exposure to litigation.

"The COVID crisis most certainly will give rise to litigation against providers in the future, even with the prospect of immunity relief," Dale and Lauren explained in the article. "Focusing on the proven shields of creating and following policies and procedures, communication, and documentation may help guard against lawsuits and will provide safer care and arm providers with a strong and sound defense."

To read the full article, please click here.