

Daniel Chung Hosts APABA Silicon Valley Summer Block Party

Spencer Fane attorney Daniel Chung recently organized and hosted the Asian Pacific American Bar Association (APABA) of Silicon Valley's Annual Summer Block Party, his second year spearheading the event in his role as Social & Community Committee co-chair. Spencer Fane was one of two corporate sponsors for the event.

The block party took place at Baylands Park in Sunnyvale and welcomed dozens of local lawyers, law students, and family members. Attendees enjoyed lawn games, bounce houses, and a selection of Vietnamese food and Korean American beverages in addition to an ice cream sundae booth. Sunnyvale Mayor Larry Klein stopped by the event for the second year in a row, an exciting appearance to culminate a fun, connection-oriented summer celebration.

APABA Silicon Valley fosters professional development, advocacy, and community involvement for Silicon Valley's Asian Pacific American legal community, a mission Daniel feels passionate about. In addition to his role as Social & Community Committee co-chair for the organization, Daniel holds leadership and / or mentorship roles within the Korean American, South Asian, and Vietnamese American Bar Associations of Northern California as well as the Asian American Bar Association.

At the firm, Daniel assists clients through all stages of litigation with thoughtful and aggressive advocacy. A former criminal prosecutor for violent crimes in New York City and Silicon Valley, he navigates high-stakes investigations, cases, motions, hearings, and trials.

Learn more about APABA Silicon Valley here.