

Jeremy Rucker Hosts Information Security and Compliance Lecture at Georgetown

Spencer Fane attorney Jeremy Rucker recently spoke at Georgetown University as a guest lecturer during the Security Laws and Regulatory Compliance course, as part of the Master's in Cybersecurity Risk Management program.

The course “addresses several leadership considerations, including how to navigate culture and style practices within organizations... [and] how to deploy continual reinforcement in their communications strategy, especially when addressing the issues of risk and change.”

Jeremy shared insight from his legal experience, highlighting the communication tools and tactics needed to work with a wide range of clients. He discussed preparation and execution strategies for workforce cybersecurity awareness communications campaigns.

At Spencer Fane, Jeremy focuses his practice on privacy and data protection and corporate transactions. He regularly counsels companies on navigating the regulatory and compliance issues before and after a data breach. He has represented companies of all sizes covering several industries including healthcare, banking and finance, and manufacturing.
