

Jeremy Rucker Talks Twitter Whistleblower on KNX In Depth

Spencer Fane attorney Jeremy Rucker recently spoke with KNX In Depth on the ongoing Twitter whistleblower situation, including the relevant advice he gives all of his clients, on its August 24 episode. KNX In Depth is the official news podcast of Los Angeles-based radio station KNX 97.1 FM.

Jeremy shared his thoughts on the whistleblower's overall allegations and the potential impact on Elon Musk's ongoing legal battle with the company.

During the interview, Jeremy stated, "Unfortunately, it's not uncommon for run-of-the-mill organizations to have these practices. However, it's extremely alarming with the size and reach of Twitter, given the amount of data Twitter captures and the general societal importance of the company."

He also explained how the allegations are a good reminder to never give a single employee access to or control of all company information.

The episode also featured discussions on President Biden's plans to cancel some student loan debt, work-from-home pay cuts, and the Tesla driver who implanted his key into his hand.

At Spencer Fane, Jeremy focuses his practice on cybersecurity and data privacy issues, spanning all industries, including health care, manufacturing, technology, and financial services. With vast experience assisting hundreds of clients in addressing cybersecurity and data privacy issues, including incident response, compliance, and cyber risk management, Jeremy has the breadth of knowledge and experience needed to ensure client needs are thoroughly and efficiently met.

Listen to the full KNX In Depth episode here.