John L. Watson Discusses U.S. Energy Policy Shifts in POWER Magazine

Spencer Fane attorney John L. Watson authored the article Contrasting Trump's Campaign Against Wind Energy With Promotion of Oil and Gas, LNG, and Nuclear Projects, recently published by POWER Magazine.

In the article, originally a firm blog post, John highlights recent developments in U.S. energy policy and their potential impact on the energy sector. He explains how shifting federal priorities are influencing energy investment, development, and infrastructure planning while considering the broader implications for the future of domestic energy production.

"The shift to renewable energy is no longer driven only by climate ambition, even if this should be a very strong driver in itself. It is being reinforced by a more immediate and pragmatic concern: the need for secure, reliable, and controllable energy systems in an increasingly uncertain world," John wrote.

At the firm, John leverages his in-depth commercial trial and litigation knowledge to represent clients in a variety of complex commercial cases, including breach of contract actions; real estate and land development; special district litigation; construction disputes between contractors and subcontractors; securities litigation; public land and natural resources law; mining; oil and gas; wildlife; toxic tort; Superfund; and air, water, and waste environmental cases.
