Minneapolis-Based Associate Joins Spencer Fane Litigation Group

Spencer Fane LLP is pleased to announce associate Samuel J. Logterman joined the Litigation and Dispute Resolution practice group in the firm's Minneapolis office.

Samuel represents clients in business and commercial litigation as well as financial services litigation with robust defense strategies and alternative dispute resolution methods geared toward quickly and efficiently resolving issues, minimizing current and prospective legal risks, and advancing business and operational interests.

As a solutions-oriented litigator who analyzes all potential scenarios before advising his clients, Samuel has cultivated a reputation for identifying the most practical, beneficial paths to case resolution. Additionally, Samuel has extensive experience structuring and conducting discovery, and has successfully defended business disputes at the trial and pre-trial phases of litigation.

"Samuel's penchant for identifying the most effective dispute resolution methods – both traditional and alternative – helps particularly risk-averse clients confidently navigate complex matters," said Donald Heeman, Office Managing Partner for Spencer Fane in Minneapolis. "He is an impactful courtroom litigator when necessary, offering dual skill sets which speak to the intentionally pragmatic yet adequately aggressive nature of the firm's litigation practice."

Samuel earned his Juris Doctor at the University of Minnesota Law School and his Bachelor of Business Administration at Drake University.
