

SpencerFane®

Natalie Miller Shares Update on IRS Pilot Program in BenefitsPro

Spencer Fane attorney Natalie Miller authored an article on the recently launched IRS pre-examination pilot program for retirement plans that could help employers avoid costly penalties. It was published by BenefitsPro, a leading ALM publication on employee benefits and labor and employment law.

In her article, How Can Retirement Plan Sponsors Prepare for New IRS Pre-Examination Pilot Program?, Natalie shared the advantages over the standard audit process and provided readers with action steps for employers that receive a pre-examination letter.

At Spencer Fane, Natalie advises benefit plan providers, administrators, and employers on matters related to ERISA and the Tax Code that impact employer-sponsored benefit plans. She proactively helps clients navigate the complex regulatory requirements governing employee benefit plans by partnering on an array of matters, including day-to-day plan administration, plan governance, and correction of operational issues.

To read the full article, please click here. Please note, a Law.com subscription may be required.