Salt Lake City Litigator Brings Powerful Military, Legal Experience to Spencer Fane

Spencer Fane LLP is pleased to welcome Kyle R. Pahren to the firm's Salt Lake City office as an associate in the Litigation and Dispute Resolution Practice Group.

Pahren helps clients navigate complex disputes by combining hands-on litigation experience, courtroom insight, and a proven ability to perform in high-stakes situations. Supported by a unique combination of legal and military experience, he approaches each matter with the discipline, preparation, and problem-solving mindset necessary to obtain optimal resolutions.

As a staff sergeant and pararescueman in the U.S. Air Force Special Warfare for more than a decade, Pahren was the lead medic on lifesaving operations in demanding environments, managed critical resources, and instructed fellow service members in complex rescue and medical procedures. The leadership, resilience, and sound judgment he has developed through military service continue to shape his client-focused approach to solving difficult problems and delivering results under pressure.

"Kyle joins our team with the natural inclination to serve clients with top-tier advocacy and unyielding drive to obtain the best results," said Keith Call, office managing partner for Spencer Fane in Salt Lake City. "The team looks forward to collaborating with him and helping him continue to expand his litigation practice."

Pahren completed his bachelor's degree summa cum laude at the University of Findlay, later earning his Juris Doctor from the University of Cincinnati College of Law.

Before entering private practice, Pahren gained valuable experience as a judicial assistant in Utah's Third District Court, where he worked closely with the judiciary on a high-volume docket of civil and criminal matters, analyzing motions and orders, drafting minute entries, and helping translate judicial decisions into formal court
