

Spencer Fane Insurance Litigation Team Continues Expansion, Adds Attorney in St. Louis

Spencer Fane LLP is pleased to announce Stuart C. Schmadeke joined the firm's St. Louis office as an of counsel attorney in the Insurance section of the Litigation and Dispute Resolution practice group.

Stuart represents businesses and manufacturers in insurance coverage disputes and other complex commercial matters, serving as an efficient and highly effective litigator when necessary and providing balanced guidance throughout alternative dispute resolution proceedings. His extensive experience spans almost every type of insurance coverage, including general liability, product liability, representation and warranty, environmental liability, directors and officers, commercial property, errors and omissions, product recall, and aviation coverage. He also guides clients with respect to insurance strategies in mass tort bankruptcies.

"Stuart's experience navigating so many different clients and lines of coverage has equipped him for a deeply knowledgeable, comprehensive insurance practice in which he draws on diverse insights and tested strategies to consistently deliver successful outcomes," said Amy K. Mistler, Office Managing Partner for Spencer Fane in St. Louis. "He will be a valuable addition to our growing, cross-office insurance litigation team as they continue to carve out a formidable reputation as industry leaders in achieving successful resolutions regardless of legal venue."

Stuart received his undergraduate degree at Duke University before earning his Juris Doctor at the New York University School of Law.

Beyond his private practice, he has given back to his community through pro bono representation for students and their families in matters pertaining to asylum, educational access, and Individualized Education Plans.