

Spencer Fane Real Estate and Corporate and Business Transactions Teams Add Associate in St. Louis

Spencer Fane LLP is pleased to announce Brett M. Sayers joined the firm's St. Louis, Missouri, office as an associate in the Corporate and Business Transactions and Real Estate practice groups.

Brett counsels businesses and individuals on a variety of matters related to corporate and business transactions, developing strategic, cost-mitigating solutions at all stages of the business life cycle. Within his comprehensive practice, he assists with entity selection, formation, ongoing operational matters, restructuring, acquisitions, divestitures, dissolution, and taxation. Additionally, Brett provides legal counsel for multiple areas of asset preservation, assisting individuals in asset protection planning, joint spousal trusts, and business succession planning.

Combining a uniquely vigilant and proactive approach to complex real estate transactions, Brett helps clients navigate the acquisition and sale of real property, commercial and residential leasing transactions, real estate financing, and real estate development.

"Brett's widely varied transactional experience will offer strategic support across several key industries," said Amy K. Mistler, Office Managing Partner for Spencer Fane in St. Louis. "His deep understanding of clients' unique objectives and track record of favorable outcomes aligns with our team's commitment to exceptional client service. We look forward to welcoming him to the St. Louis team and watching his impact grow across our national footprint."

Brett completed his Bachelor of Business Administration at Southern Methodist University before earning his Juris Doctor at the University of Missouri. Prior to entering private practice, he worked at a Big Four accounting firm helping multinational corporations maximize value, experience which helped shape his client-centric approach to law.
