Spencer Fane Sponsors 'Private Lives' at Arizona Theatre Company

Spencer Fane was proud to sponsor Arizona Theatre Company (ATC)'s production of 'Private Lives,' a work by celebrated playwright Noël Coward, at the Herberger Theater Center in Phoenix from April 15 to May 28. Attorneys Karen Wohlgemuth, Jerry Ehrlich, Norma Izzo, and Matt Rojas as well as staff member Tara Hughes represented the firm at a performance.

As explained by Director KJ Sanchez in the CITYSunTimes, the production reimaged the classic, 93-year-old comedy in South America and wove tango dancing into the plot to "dive deeper into the emotional themes of physical chemistry and once-in-a-lifetime kinds of love." The play thus continued to captivate audiences with its clever story of an adversarial divorced couple who inadvertently honeymoon with their new spouses at the same hotel.

ATC's performances bring people together to experience essential stories and foster continued conversation beyond the theatre walls. Each season, ATC collaborates with world-class artists and reaches an audience of over 100,000 patrons through mainstage productions, student matinees, community outreach, and digital offerings. Karen serves on the ATC Board of Trustees.
