Spencer Fane Team Presents Colorado Bar Association Environmental Law Webinar

Spencer Fane attorneys Michelle Berger, John Peckler, and Evan Singleton collaborated on a webinar addressing Colorado's 1041 Statute and local regulations, which was presented to the Colorado Bar Association Environmental Law Section on October 17.

During the session, Navigating 1041 Regulations: Insights for Environmental Attorneys, Michelle and John provided an overview of the Colorado regulations that authorize local governments to oversee land use for Areas and Activities of State Interest. The presentation included an outline of 1041 permit applications and their statutory requirements.

At Spencer Fane, Michelle combines her legal and engineering experience to provide clients with effective solutions to help keep complex construction and development projects on schedule and on budget. John and Evan also help clients navigate complex development projects and real estate transactions. They work with individuals, businesses, and developers on all aspects of land use and real estate law, helping to negotiate and draft documents for projects from the ground up.

A recording of the presentation is available upon request.
