Vaccines and Masks: Legal and Practical Solutions for Employers and HR

Spencer Fane attorney Helen Holden recently presented a virtual training session hosted by Business Management Daily, where she covered legal and practical considerations for employers related to COVID-19 workplace safety.

During the interactive online presentation, Helen discussed best practices for vaccine mandates and complying with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention/Occupational Safety and Health Administration/State mask guidance in the workplace. She also addressed recent developments in return-to-office plans and held a Q&A session.

At Spencer Fane, Helen focuses on the management side of employment law and provides practical advice and training to management on human resource issues. She has experience with federal and state employment law and represents companies in diverse industry sectors. Helen is often called upon to speak on labor and employment topics, including those concerning COVID-19 in the workplace.
