July 16, 2024
12:00 pm CDT - 1:30 pm CDT

Since its enactment in 1972, Title IX has protected U.S. students from sex-based discrimination, but the regulatory landscape of this landmark civil rights law continues to evolve.

This webinar will provide both informational and practical insights for K-12 and higher education institutions on such updates from attorneys James Crumlin, Sam Jackson, Sara Naylor, and Bethany Vanhooser. The session will begin with an overview of the changes to the Title IX regulations for K-12 schools and how to implement those changes in practice. The panel will conclude with a discussion of the changes for higher education institutions, focusing on key shifts in the regulations and the practical impact of those changes on institutional policies and procedures.
