Overview

Alex represents clients in complex commercial litigation and white-collar criminal and regulatory matters, quickly and decisively addressing potential risks and penalties to create the most favorable solutions amid high-stakes disputes in and out of the courtroom.

With significant knowledge of U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission regulations, Alex's work includes SEC investigations and securities-related litigation. He also has experience conducting reviews of federally registered broker-dealers and investment advisors while navigating potential FINRA rules / securities laws violations.

In the digital asset space, Alex has represented clients from pre-discovery through trial, notably and successfully representing the founder of one of the nation's largest cryptocurrency mining companies in an investigation by the FBI and U.S. Attorney's Office. In addition, he is a recognized legal advocate for social media influencers and other prominent online personalities in litigation.
