Overview

Allyson Crowder concentrates her practice on a wide range of labor and employment law disputes, vigorously representing employers throughout all phases of litigation. Her broad experience includes resolving lawsuits related to employment discrimination, harassment, and wrongful termination both in and out of the courtroom.

Since entering private practice, Allyson has gained valuable experience researching complex HR issues, drafting briefs, and assisting with mediations and depositions. While earning her Juris Doctor, she worked for an affirmative action and HR compliance consulting company, where she ensured federal contractors complied with all applicable regulations – experience which now lends itself to a more comprehensive view of potential risks employers should prepare for when navigating employee disputes.
