Overview

Amy Knapp conceptualizes, designs, and activates legal strategies designed to achieve outcomes aligned with client business objectives and goals, minimizing financial and reputational risks and exposure.

With a proven track record of representing Colorado companies, national employers, and international corporations in all aspects of employment and labor issues, Amy regularly reviews, revises, and advises on employment policies and practices, personnel issues, and the legal implications of management decisions in an effort to avoid litigious matters. However, she also regularly assists employers of all sizes in resolving claims brought before state and federal agencies and legal venues throughout the country.

Amy continues to develop a deserved reputation for handling the complexities of hearings related to unfair labor practice charges before the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) and charges of discrimination brought before the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and the Colorado Civil Rights Division (CCRD). Her dispute resolution experience includes handling single-plaintiff and class and collective actions in federal and state courts to achieve favorable outcomes in matters arising from employment disputes, discrimination, harassment and retaliation claims, wage and hour issues, employment and other contract disputes, and alleged employment law violations.

A former clerk for two plaintiff-side employment firms and the EEOC, Amy possesses practical insight into how best to defend against discrimination and retaliation claims.
