Overview

Brianna's collaborative approach to legal services drives an ability to successfully advocate for her clients' interests regardless of the legal venue. Her private practice focuses on all aspects of the process for handling complex commercial litigation matters with cost-effective representation for clients. In 2022, she completed a summer associateship with Spencer Fane in the firm's Nashville office, where she gained significant experience with the firm's unique and dynamic culture and value proposition.

After completing her undergraduate studies in finance at the University of Arkansas, Brianna earned a Juris Doctor from the University of Tennessee College of Law. While in law school, she completed a clerkship with the Tennessee Office of the Attorney General and served as an editor for the Tennessee Law Review.
