Overview

Chase Fann is a partner in the firm's Nashville Office, where he represents individual and business clients in civil and criminal litigation. Chase is a passionate litigator with diverse experience across a variety of practice areas in both civil and criminal law. He has represented clients in both state and federal courts at the trial and appellate level in contract disputes, partnership disputes, employment claims (including discrimination, retaliation, and FLSA), entertainment matters, state criminal defense, and white-collar criminal defense. Chase leverages this depth of knowledge and broad exposure across practice areas to serve as practical and effective counsel for a diverse variety of clients.

As a litigator, Chase regularly appears in state and federal civil and criminal courts, and has obtained successful outcomes for his clients in both forums through jury trials and dispositive motions. Clients also utilize Chase's skillset by employing him during difficult situations for his advice on potential legal implications and mitigating risk while achieving their goals. Chase is a trusted asset who delivers practical and efficient solutions to clients as they navigate existing and future legal issues.

Chase completed his undergraduate studies at the University of Tennessee before earning his Juris Doctor from the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law at the University of Memphis, where he finished ranked second in his class and received awards for earning the best grade in 10 courses. Prior to entering private practice, he served as an extern for the Hon. John T. Fowlkes, Jr. in the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee and an intern for the Davidson County District Attorney General's Office and the Hon. Julia S. Gibbons in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Prior to joining Spencer Fane, Chase practiced with his family's boutique litigation firm, Waldron Fann & Parsley, in Murfreesboro, Tennessee.
