Overview

Christine Fox helps guide individuals and businesses through all stages of litigation and dispute resolution, regularly navigating complex business disputes and matters related to employment law, business litigation, corporate law, and appellate law.

Supported by a vigorous work ethic, Christine proactively engages clients to resolve disputes as early as possible and form robust courtroom arguments when necessary. She also boasts experience in appellate venues, where she employs her high attention to detail to support in-depth case analyses and form thorough written and oral strategies.

In addition to her work in private practice, Christine formerly served as a deputy public defender for criminal matters in the Washoe County (Nevada) Public Defender's Office.
