Overview

Daniel Hill helps businesses with investment and securities disputes as well as finance, business, and corporate law matters. As a successful litigator and mergers and acquisitions attorney, he brings a wealth of real-world business experience to his practice.

Daniel has represented businesses of all sizes and statuses, from startups to regional, national, and international entities. His clients include closely held and vertically integrated businesses involved in manufacturing, marketing, and financing. Other clients include SaaS companies, road reclamation and construction companies, iron and steel construction companies, clients with businesses that are open to the public, commercial real estate companies, financial advisors, and East Indian suppliers of IT experts. Daniel also represents several regional and national banks.

As a lucrative business owner and former Senior Corporate Counsel for a publicly traded company doing business in 46 states, Daniel brings many years of a rounded, realistic, and economically rational perspective to the practice of law, representing clients from all sides of the legal table.

In addition to helping his clients in various business and corporate matters, Daniel runs his own finance company.
