Overview

Evan Singleton assists clients with negotiating and drafting documents for real estate projects from the ground up, including purchase and sale contracts, easements, title review, restrictive covenants, declarations and maintenance agreements, leases, financing documents, and construction contracts. He has represented purchasers and sellers of real estate, with specific experience in navigating complex environmental matters related to the transaction and subsequent development of property.

Evan completed his undergraduate studies at Colorado State University and later earned his Juris Doctor from the Arizona State University's Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.
