Overview

Ryan Sacra helps businesses navigate corporate transactions, securities matters, and strategic growth initiatives so they can pursue opportunities, raise capital, and achieve their long-term objectives.

His practice encompasses a broad range of corporate and securities matters, including business formation and planning, joint ventures, public and private securities offerings, private equity financing, securities regulation, and ongoing compliance obligations. Ryan advises clients at every stage of the business life cycle, providing practical counsel tailored to their operational and strategic goals.

A significant portion of Ryan's practice focuses on transactional matters within the energy industry. He represents companies in acquisitions, dispositions, and other complex business transactions and has advised both sponsors and conflicts committees in connection with dropdown transactions involving master limited partnerships. By combining corporate, transactional, and securities law experience, Ryan helps clients structure transactions efficiently while managing legal and regulatory risk.

Ryan's clients range from privately held businesses to Fortune 500 companies and operate across a variety of industries, including energy, communications, venture capital, aviation, manufacturing, software development, and retail. His broad industry experience allows him to provide business-focused advice informed by the unique challenges and opportunities facing each client.
