Overview

Jeremy Lowe leads the Spencer Fane Hatch-Waxman and Biologics Litigation group, which provides strategic counsel on regulatory compliance, Hatch-Waxman litigation, BPCIA litigation, and Federal Circuit appeals. Boasting more than 24 years of experience as a trial and appellate attorney, he works with both plaintiffs and defendants in state and federal courts to consistently achieve favorable outcomes.

Recognized for his exceptional legal acumen, Jeremy has successfully represented clients before multiple U.S. district courts, the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit, and the U.S. Supreme Court. His notable victories include defending a multibillion-dollar jury trial and achieving a landmark ruling that reshaped 150 years of double patenting law.

Jeremy's undergraduate degree in chemical engineering and capacity to understand high-level STEM materials have laid the foundation for exceptional legal services and outcomes. He prioritizes honest and transparent communication with clients, proactive and ethical legal strategies, professional relationship maintenance with opposing counsel, and winning by all means necessary.
