Overview

Kaylee Vanstory represents businesses in a wide variety of litigation matters, balancing immediate organizational interests with financial and reputational preservation for long-term business success. Her focus areas span commercial litigation, noncompete agreements and trade secrets, intellectual property matters, business and partnership disputes, and other general business torts.

Experienced in both written and oral advocacy, Kaylee has tried multiple jury trials to verdict alongside her colleagues. Forging a proactive role in the courtroom so early in her career is a testament to her tenacity as a litigator and underscored by her continued track record of optimal legal outcomes.

Prior to entering private practice, Kaylee completed a judicial clerkship for the Honorable Martin Hoffman of the 68th Civil District Court for Dallas County (Texas).
