Overview

Marty Hyman's track record as a commercial litigator spans more than 45 years of experience representing a diverse range of clients – from multinational corporations to high-profile personalities to business professionals – in complex negotiations, mediations, settlements, trials, and appeals.

Marty advises clients across a broad spectrum of industries, including consumer electronics, sports and entertainment, financial services, insurance, food and beverage, health care, chemicals, fashion, luxury goods, cosmetics, raw materials, publishing, and trade associations. His deep understanding of the legal, business, and personal implications of disputes enables him to guide clients through litigation with a focus on protecting their assets, reputations, business objectives, and long-term interests. His clients have included private and public companies, business executives, athletes, physicians, authors, and entertainers, all of whom rely on his courtroom acumen and practical advice.

Whether handling high-stakes commercial disputes or advising on risk mitigation, Marty provides seasoned judgment, creative strategies, and results-driven advocacy.
