Overview

Oscar assists clients ranging from large, publicly traded corporations to local and regional entities with disputes arising from all aspects of their operations, including construction (lien and bond claims, defects, contract disputes), land use development, and complex commercial litigation.

In his daily practice, Oscar works to identify his clients' specific business objectives, proactively resolving disputes while protecting both finances and reputations. While managing the interests of a diverse range of industry professionals within large companies, he forms adaptable solutions that align with evolving needs and regulations.

To gain the necessary skills to become a commercial litigator, Oscar served as a law clerk for a Utah-based firm. Impressively, he served as the president of the Southern Utah Bar Association shortly after beginning his practice.
