Overview

Rob Schumann advises family businesses and closely held private companies at all stages of the business life cycle, offering strategic, comprehensive solutions for a wide variety of needs critical to operational success. These include startup planning and business formation; business reorganization; business sales and acquisitions; real estate sales, acquisitions, and leasing matters; family and business succession planning; and corporate contracts and leases.

Adeptly shifting between small transactions and complex, multimillion-dollar deals, Rob has advised family businesses as well as large corporate entities on mergers and acquisitions and related matters. He has also used his adaptable strategies and strong foresight to advise both buyers and sellers in transactional matters, including stock and asset deals.

Rob's practice spans several diverse industries, including auto, truck, RV and implement dealerships; construction and real estate development companies; and enterprises in the sports and entertainment, manufacturing, retail, and professional service industries.
