Overview

Sarah Kanoy Hobbs represents individuals and businesses in complex commercial litigation and high-stakes white collar defense, employing thoughtful strategies and fierce advocacy to achieve favorable outcomes at all stages of a dispute.

Recognized for her highly analytical approach to litigation, Sarah identifies and prioritizes specific client objectives during early counseling stages, then forms practical, adaptable plans that create advantages, mitigate risk, and guide clients toward the most favorable positions in and out of the courtroom.

When pursuing commercial litigation, Sarah understands the importance of layering established blueprints with agile litigation or negotiation tactics that can shift as the case evolves. In her white collar litigation practice, she is adept at handling highly sensitive matters and addresses every case from a comprehensive legal, financial, and reputational perspective while maintaining transparent communication with the client.
