Overview

Stacy Harper counsels organizations in the health care space on regulatory compliance, health care reimbursement, and data privacy and cybersecurity issues. Stacy's unique background as a certified professional coder and compliance officer provides her with first-hand knowledge of the legal and practical requirements faced by health care organizations.

Stacy regularly works with clients to navigate the complex intersection between federal laws such as Stark, Anti-Kickback, HIPAA, HITECH, Medicare regulations, No Surprises Act, Affordable Care Act, and the additional state requirements such as corporate practice of medicine, professional licensure, Medicaid regulations, and privacy laws. Whether the client is developing a new joint venture, creating a value-based payment arrangement, establishing data sharing for community health, or just maintaining ongoing operations, Stacy strives to work with the client to develop a structure that will support the client's business objectives while reinforcing compliance with applicable legal requirements.

Stacy is a writer and lecturer on topics ranging from health care coding and reimbursement to data privacy and cybersecurity, and currently serves on the Legal Advisory Board for AAPC.
