Overview

Thomas Moring represents a broad range of clients in high-stakes business and real estate disputes in state and federal courts, including appellate courts, tailoring his litigation strategies to meet clients' key business objectives across industries and matters. His practice focuses on complex real estate and commercial litigation, creditors' rights matters, tort claims, and collections disputes.

With extensive experience managing every phase of litigation, Tom guides clients from initial investigation through discovery, motion practice, settlement negotiations, trial, and post-trial enforcement. He regularly serves as lead counsel in complex civil litigation matters, handling cases involving contract disputes, commercial landlord-tenant issues, real estate transactions, secured lending conflicts, and creditor recovery actions. In addition, he has acted as local counsel for several out-of-state law firms and clients.

Tom is notably well-versed in high-exposure litigation matters, successfully representing clients in commercial trials involving more than $1 million in controversy and managing substantial personal injury actions that have resulted in settlements exceeding $1 million.
