Overview

Travis Cade Armstrong provides thorough and innovative representation through the full cycle of commercial litigation, always with the aim of obtaining results that align with clients' unique business goals. Travis focuses his practice on appellate law, navigating the procedural pitfalls of litigation to ensure that clients are in the best possible position to protect their trial victories and undo their trial defeats. Consistent with his practice, Travis has a passion for legal research and writing, serving clients with lucid, erudite, and above all persuasive written advocacy. However, Travis is no stranger to the courtroom, and he brings a curated track record of trial success in commercial, insurance, employment, and personal injury matters.

With a focus on composed, collaborative, and collegial client service, Travis knows how to address a wide range of litigation challenges. Whether overseeing a fast-paced injunction proceeding, preparing a winning summary judgment brief, cross-examining witnesses at trial, or arguing complex legal issues before the appellate court, Travis never loses sight of achieving clients' goals through agile and cost-effective representation.
