Stephanie Lovett-Bowman Selected for Kansas City Tomorrow Program

JUNE 21, 2017 | NEWS

The Civic Council of Greater Kansas City has selected Spencer Fane attorney Stephanie Lovett-Bowman as a member of the 2017 class of the Kansas City Tomorrow program. Stephanie joins a select group of business, industry, and government leaders who, over a 9-month period, will focus on issues analysis, decision making, and building effective community leadership skills.

Kansas City Tomorrow (KCT) is committed to developing an expanded business leadership cadre that is capable of addressing and solving challenges facing the greater Kansas City region. The curriculum allows participants to learn from and interact with members of the Civic Council and many of Kansas City's most successful business and civic leaders.

Stephanie is a litigator and counselor who focuses on helping educational institutions resolve disputes and implementing best practices to proactively avoid risk and conflict. Her goal is always to help schools maximize their time and resources to allow them to concentrate on what they do best, educating students.
